

Paranormal Pop Culture Update for July 10th, 2015

Movie of the Week

Written and Directed by Chris Lofing and Travis Cluff, The Gallows is the newest horror movie to hit the theaters! Twenty years after an accident caused the death of the lead actor during a high school play, students at the same small town school resurrect the failed stage production in a misguided attempt to honor the anniversary of the tragedy. They soon discover though that some things are better left alone. Starring Cassidy Gifford and Pfeifer Brown, The Gallows is out in theaters July 10th! Check out the trailer below:

Premiering on TV this Week

The second season of Dominion premieres this week! In the first season, God vanishes, and in his absence the archangel Gabriel and his army of lower angels wage war against mankind – believing them to be the cause of God's absence. Although most higher angels remain neutral, Gabriel has convinced the lower angels, the "dogs of Heaven," called "eight-balls" by humans for their black eyes, to fight alongside him. 25 years later, mankind survives in a few fortified cities. The Archangel Michael has chosen to side with humanity against Gabriel, living among humans in the fortified city of Vega (once Las Vegas) until the time a prophesied savior appears to save mankind. The second season of Dominion premiered on July 9th on the Syfy network.

Book of the Week

Written by Kim Stanley Robinson, the new novel Aurora is out this week! Generations ago, a starship left Earth with plans to set up a colony in the Tau Ceti system. Aurora begins in the final stage of the journey, with the ship only a few years out. Early on we're introduced to a young teen, Freya, the daughter of the ship's chief engineer, Devi. We follow Freya through adolescence and growing older, documenting the problems the ship faces as landfall nears: a host of mechanical/environmental issues, biological obstacles, and social problems. Eventually, the colonists come face to face with the basic question of viability — is this mission even possible? Aurora was available on Amazon.com on July 7th!

Event of the Week

Ideal Event Manage is hosting a paranormal investigation at the Old South Pittsburg Hospital in the US! Old South Pittsburg Hospital is known for being one of the most haunted locations in Tennessee, if not the entire south. Over the years since it closed, there have been many reports of unusual and paranormal activity relayed from South Pittsburg residents, former employees, media, investigators and teams. This activity includes, but not limited to day time and night time photos, being touched, full body apparitions, black shadow people, strange balls of light, disembodied voices calling out to you, doors slamming of their own will, and sounds of
